Walter Defends Immigration Act In Heated Debate

Truman Calls For Overhaul Of Measure

Washington (AP)—President Truman aroused a new storm in Congress yesterday by asking for early consideration of proposals to overhaul the three-week-old McCarran immigration law.

He submitted a report of a presidential commission calling for revision of the law "from beginning to end," with abolishment of the quota system of immigration and admission of 100,000 additional aliens each year.

Rep. Francis Walter (D-Pa.), who joined with Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.) in sponsoring the law, jumped up in the House to charge that the commission was set up "for the purpose of discrediting the law."

There is nothing in the act that can be construed as "anti-anything," Walter declared, despite the claims of opponents that it is discriminatory. He urged the House not to be stampeded into changes.

"So many professionals, professional Jews, are shedding crocodile tears for no reason whatsoever," he said. This apparently was a reference to protests of Jewish organizations against Jewish refugees in some of the low-quota countries of Europe.

Some of the agitation for changes, Walter said, grew out of refusal of American authorities to allow some members of the French liner, Liberté, to spend Christmas in New York.

An investigation, he said, disclosed that "a finer crew of throat-cutters couldn't be found anywhere."

Under the restrictions of the new act, shore leave was denied 270 members of the Liberté's crew who refused to answer questions about their political or criminal background, if any, and two others who failed to meet the standards of the act.

Rep. Celler (D-NY) urged the House to act swiftly on the changes proposed by the commission.

Rep. Javits (R-NY) said there are both Catholics and Protestants who oppose the new law.

"It is very significant," Javits added, "that both presidential candidates called for a rewriting of the McCarran-Walter Act. Let us not consider the changes in terms of professional Jews or any other interested groups."

Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) got into the debate with a demand to know "where some people get the idea that people in other countries have the right—the right, I said—to come to this country."

"I can't subscribe to the idea that those who wrote the McCarran-Walter Act were motivated by any desire other than to protect this country," Hoffman said.

Truman told Congress that if his commission's recommendations are enacted into law they "would do much to convince the peoples of the free world that we have not lost one iota of our faith in the great principles upon which this nation was founded."

McCarran and Walter have defended the new law as protecting the American way of life, and McCarran has said it is "very tough on Communists."

Truman vetoed the bill last June. Congress passed it over his objections that it discriminated against some religious and nationalities, including Southern Europeans.

Searchers Find Crash Victims

Fish Haven, Idaho, (AP)—The first search party to reach the desolate mountain ridge where a C-46 carrying Korean War veterans to their homes crashed, found only parts of bodies and bits of clothing in the shredded wreckage yesterday.

Deep snow covered the icy tombs of the 37 veterans and three crew members.

"There were bodies all over," said Air Force Capt. E. W. Morris, of Lock Haven, Pa., who directed the grim operation. "An arm, a leg, a piece here and a piece there. You would have to dig all the snow off the mountainside to get the bodies out."

The ground crew rode three snow vehicles to the wreckage, which was spotted Monday on the heavily wooded mountain, seven miles west of here. The site is in the northern fringe of the Wasatch Mountains, about 125 miles north of Salt Lake City.

Number Of Families Still Without Power Narrowed To 400 In Wake Of Storm

Some 400 families still depended upon kerosene for light and heat last night but power companies had won the major battle yesterday.

Pennsylvania Power and Light saw a "good day's work" for several crews before broken poles in the western part of the county would be replaced. An estimated 150 to 200 dwellings were without current in the Stroudsburg district, said District Manager Carleton G. Long; an additional 190 were still out in the Mount Pocono district.

Main source of current was normal throughout the day, Long said. Now starts the tedious clean-up job, he added. Crews will "ride the circuits" and straighten out emergency repairs. By tonight, Long thought, nearly all but "stragglers" with freak difficulties should have service.

PP&L may be able to get to the street lighting systems tomorrow, if service to dwellings is in sufficiently good shape. Metropolitan Edison had about completed restorations last night. Only about 25 customers were out of service, according to Manager Ted Henning of that company. These would be in today. Some "stragglers" were expected by M-E, too.

M-E released some 39 of the extra men it had imported to battle storm wreckage. Bell Telephone Manager Bud VanHorn reported 57 telephones still out—nearly all in the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area—and 2,872 restored. Bell planned to release some of its extra help today, too.

There was no report from Blue Mountain Telephone Co., but local operators said there were no private or party lines in service between Stroudsburg and Saylorburg. Only line open is the line from Stroudsburg to the Saylorburg exchange office of Blue Mountain.

Abbott Dairy's distribution plant and storage at West Main St., Stroudsburg, sent to Wilkes-Barre over the weekend for dry ice. The local plant had enough on hand to hold their own products but wanted more for their dealers.

James Koppenhaver, of Cream-ice Cream Co., East Stroudsburg, said M-E "aided tremendously" in keeping his power on and so he lost nothing. A few dealers suffered minor losses. Koppenhaver had an emergency system operated by gasoline.

Philadelphia Transit Union Stages Walkout After Voting To Ignore Quill Agreement

Philadelphia, (AP)—Philadelphia's farflung transit network was stopped in its tracks today by a strike of CIO transport workers who voted two hours earlier to ignore an agreement of union and company negotiators.

Full effect on the walkout will be felt when the 2½ million transit riders of the Philadelphia metropolitan area start the morning rush. Railroads, taxicab companies and automobile owners braced for the expected jam.

Operators of the Philadelphia Transportation Company's trolleys, subways and buses began converging on company barns at midnight. Union officials said the entire stoppage would not be completed until nearly an hour after the midnight strike deadline.

Some Philadelphians went to bed last night under the mistaken impression that the strike had been settled. Six hours before the scheduled walkout, union and management negotiators announced an agreement had been reached.

"That agreement was submitted later to a boozing, shouting mass meeting of 2,500 members of the union's Local 234. By a standing vote, the transit workers voted to reject the proposed pact and walk out."

The midnight strike hour was chosen because it marked the end of a 30-day no-strike injunction ordered by the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court, acting on a petition filed by the PTC.

The settlement was initially announced by Michael J. Quill, international TWU president, and Albert M. Greenfield, principal negotiator for the Philadelphia Transportation Co., following a day-long session in the office of Mayor Clark.

Fannin County is on the Texas-Oklahoma border. The influenza reports center in an area extending from Indiana, through Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

It appeared to be spreading northward into Nebraska and Wyoming, but was not serious yet in those areas.

Illinois health officials reported the infection had reached pandemic proportions in Centralia in Southern Illinois. They described pandemic as meaning a majority of people in a given area are affected.

Judge Grants Delay In Monopoly Litigation Against Five Major American Oil Companies

Washington (AP)—American oil companies involved in government charges of world-wide monopoly yesterday won a delay which throws the whole case into the lap of the incoming Eisenhower administration.

Defying the Truman administration to go ahead with criminal action and turning down a conditional offer to substitute a civil suit, the companies went to court on their own trying to head off the whole affair.

Federal Judge James R. Kirkland rejected their motions asking him to cancel subpoenas for company records, void various orders he has signed, and dismiss the special grand jury investigating charges of price fixing and market splitting by a great international cartel.

But he put off until Jan. 28 the date for production of the papers, which had been subpoenaed for today. That is eight days after the new Republican regime will be installed in Washington.

The judge remarked that his action will give the present administration "time to make up its mind what it wants to do" and allow the new regime time "to consider if it wants to act or not."

Altogether some 20 U. S. oil firms were under orders to produce records and more than half of them had been resisting.

Directly involved in yesterday's proceedings, however, were only five of them—Standard of New Jersey, Socony-Vacuum, the Texas Company, California Texas, and Standard of California.

The essence of what all the companies said was that the basis for a grand jury action no longer exists since President Truman said Monday that the national interest might be better served by a civil action. Kirkland turned all the pleas down.

The largest contingent of draftees to leave Monroe County since the end of World War Two will travel by bus to Wilkes-Barre tomorrow morning for induction into the Armed Forces.

Thirty-five men are in the county call, all over 19 years old. It was stated, prior to this schedule November, 1952 saw 24 men drafted and in March, 1951, 20 youths were called into service, marking the largest lists since 1945.

Also, Thomas J. Lynott Jr. and Clarence W. Werkheiser, of Mount Pocono; Henry Ace Jr., of Bushkill; Walter L. Kintner, of Minisink Hills; William J. Dailey, of Tobyhanna, and Donald E. Judge, of Pocono Pines.

B-29s Strike Heavy Blows

Seoul (AP)—American B-29 Superfortresses, striking in early morning darkness, today dropped 110 tons of bombs on Red rail targets in the vital Sinanju transport area of Northwest Korea.

The raid carried the Allied air assault into its sixth straight day of pulverizing blows against the Communist supply artery for the Korean front.

A 440-plane, around-the-clock assault yesterday turned the bridge and rail network into a soaking ruin. U. S. Sabre jets protecting those raiders yesterday reported they shot down two Communist jets.

On the ground, Communist troops flied a series of nuisance assaults in subzero weather last night across the winding battlefield front. The largest was a three-pronged attack along 1,000 yards of front west of the Mundung Valley in Eastern Korea.

Allied troops repulsed the assaults. Two fresh Communist armies were reported on the Western Front by the U. S. Eighth Army.

12 Die When B-50 Crashes In Rice Field

Orville, Calif. (AP)—An Air Force B-50 with 12 men aboard crashed in a rain-soaked rice field southwest of here yesterday. The Air Force said there were no survivors.

Floyd Jensen, a farmer living near the crash scene, said the big four-engine plane seemed to falter, then spin to the ground short of a private airstrip.

There was no explosion or fire. The wings and fuselage crumpled, leaving only the tail section intact.

The Air Force announced the bomber, an improved version of the B-29 of World War II, was on a routine training flight from Castle Air Force Base.

Names of the plane's crewmen will not be announced until today after next-of-kin have been informed.

The crash occurred in the Sacramento Valley, 60 miles north of Sacramento.

Ike Appoints Democrat As Revenue Chief

New York (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower yesterday named an independent Democrat as commissioner of the Bureau of Internal Revenue—T. Coleman Andrews of Richmond, Va. He is senior partner of a certified public accountant firm which bears his name.

At the same time it was announced that Elbert Parr Tuttle of Atlanta, Ga., the state's Republican committee chairman and head of the Eisenhower delegation which served at the Republican National Convention in Chicago last July, was selected to be general counsel of the Treasury.

Another Republican, Charles R. Hook Jr. of Cleveland, Ohio, is to be deputy postmaster general under Arthur E. Summerfield, it was announced.

Earlier, it was announced that Roger Steffan, 60-year-old New York banker, had been named to a newly created position in the administration—that of "director of operations," or business manager, of the White House internal organization.

Steffan, nationally known as a pioneer organizer of consumer banking and thrift promotion, will serve under Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President-elect.

Rails May Seek Rate Adjustments

New York (AP)—J. Elmer Monroe, a railroad economist, said yesterday the nation's railroads might seek adjustments in rates and charges because of low revenues in 1952 if union demands for wage increases were granted.

Monroe told a wage hearing before a U. S. Government referee that the railroads' financial plight is "so serious" they "should not be called upon to make additional wage increases at this time."

Eisenhower To Send Dulles, Stassen On European Mission

New York, (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower will send two of his top officials to Europe soon after he takes office to study political trends there in relation to United States military and economic aid.

They are John Foster Dulles, who will be secretary of state, and Harold E. Stassen, who will direct foreign economic aid as chief of the Mutual Security Agency.

They are scheduled to leave at the end of this month for 10 days of conference, James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, told newsmen yesterday.

The actual departure date and the itinerary have not yet been worked out.

The decision for Dulles and Stassen to make a personal survey of the European scene was reached at conferences Eisenhower was holding yesterday with his Cabinet designers and other high officials of the forthcoming administration.

It came at a time when American officials are showing concern at a possible slowdown in building Western European defenses.

It coincided also with some congressional demands that American governmental spending be reduced. Republican leaders have talked of lowering nine to 10 billion dollars of President Truman's $78,600,000 budget.

At the end of yesterday's Cabinet conference, Dulles told newsmen he is going to Europe because he wants to "get the feel of the political situation in the principal countries of Western Europe."

Dulles declined to say which countries he and Stassen intend to visit, but he did say they have no plans to go behind the Iron Curtain.

Dulles was asked whether he intended to look into what a reporter termed the lag in the NATO program.

"This is not a technical mission," Dulles replied, indicating that he was putting the main emphasis on other aspects of the situation in Europe.

"I think it will be a fruitful trip to get the atmosphere in Western Europe again because many problems will come up for discussion here and we want to have that background."

Russia Blames Killings On Zionist Plot

Moscow (AP)—Soviet newspapers yesterday demanded a swift trial and execution for nine doctors charged with killing two Russian leaders and trying to kill others. The government said most of the nine in the "terrorist group" were tied up with a Jewish organization, and all were linked with U.S. and British spying.

An official announcement—broadcast and discussed all over the Soviet Union yesterday—said the doctors had confessed ending the lives of Andrei A. Zhdanov and Alexander S. Scherbakov through faulty treatment of heart ailments. Zhdanov, a leading Politburo member, died four years ago at 52. Scherbakov died seven years ago at 44. He was head of the Army's political administration.

The Communist newspaper Pravda denounced state security organs for failing to uncover the group sooner. It said the investigation still is going on.

The official accusation said the nine doctors tried to weaken Soviet defenses by treating three marshals, one general of the Army and an admiral so that they would eventually die. Others not immediately named also were declared marked for death.

Moscow was struck by the statement that the plot was carried out on instructions from British and American intelligence services and Zionist organizations. There were angry demands for "stern punishment of the foul murderers."

Typical of the Moscow editorial reaction was a statement in the Soviet trade unions organ Trud: "Damnation and shame the foul degenerates and murderers. Soviet justice will crush like a poisonous reptile the criminal band which sold itself for dollars and pounds sterling. Nor will the American and British inspirers of the murderers and wreckers escape retribution."

The official announcement said state security organs uncovered the plot "some time ago."

The "terroristic group of physicians" under arrest were identified as M. S. Vovsi, V. E. Vinogradov, M. E. Kogan, B. E. Kogan, P. I. Egorov, Y. G. Etinger and G. I. Mayorov, therapists; A. M. Grinshtein, neuropathologist (nervous specialist), and A. E. Feldman, an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.

Besides Zhdanov and Scherbakov, those declared marked for death were War Minister Marshal Alexander M. Vassilevsky; Marshal Ivan S. Konev, commander in chief of Soviet ground forces; his chief of staff, Gen. S. M. Shtemenko; Marshal Leonid A. Govorov, liberator of Leningrad in World War II; and Adm. G. I. Levchenko, deputy Navy minister.

"Most of the participants in the terrorist group," the announcement said, "were connected with Joint, the international Jewish bourgeois nationalist organization set up by the American intelligence service, allegedly for rendering material aid to Jews in other countries."

"But actually this organization, under the guidance of the American intelligence service, conducts broad scale espionage, terroristic and other subversive activities in a number of countries, including the Soviet Union."

The American Joint Distribution Committee has sent millions of dollars to aid European Jews since World War II.

Cocker Spaniel Helps Get Master Out Of Prison

Lima, O. (AP)—Ruff, a black cocker spaniel with soulful eyes, floppy ears and abiding love for his master, can't talk, find lost boys or walk on his hind legs. But, he can open jail doors.

He turned that trick for Walter H. King, 35, his beloved owner. Besides which, he collected $21, food, clothing and disturbed the rest of a judge.

King, fined $9 Monday for stealing a ride on a Nickel Plate freight train, had only 80 cents. So he went to jail. This made Ruff sad. Ruff wouldn't eat. Police took him to the Lima animal shelter, where a newspaper photographer took his picture.

Ruff gave his all to the camera, looking so sad and so cute Lima pet lovers bombarded Municipal Judge Paul J. Rockey with telephone calls.

Judge Rockey, unable to sleep, released King yesterday with blessings, $21, clothing and food for Ruff, who gets to ride to Muncie, Ind., in a nice clean baggage car. King will be sitting on cushions up ahead.

Society Of Farm Women Honors Mrs. Eisenhower

Harrisburg (AP)—Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, wife of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower, yesterday was made an honorary member of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania at the group's 34th annual meeting with the State Farm Show here.

The action was taken in the form of a resolution unanimously approved by farm women delegates. The Eisenhowers own a farm near Gettysburg.

Other resolutions adopted would: Urge stricter enforcement of a state law requiring motorists to stop in either direction when approaching a school bus loading or unloading children on a rural road. Sponsor wholesome recreational activities for farm youth in churches, school and communities.

Urge the state legislature to consider appropriating funds to expand present State Farm Show accommodations to meet the need for greater space.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Linda Killmore of Lisburn, Pa., snuggles up to a Holstein calf which was the first calf born at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, Pa. The calf, which will be named "Stonehurst J. Fine" after Pennsylvania's Gov. John J. Fine, is owned by LeRoy Welk of Strasburg, Pa.

State Farm Show Described As All-Year-Round Effort

Harrisburg, (AP)—As thousands viewed moving herds of livestock and the latest in modern farm machinery, evidence mounted yesterday that the Pennsylvania State Farm Show is a year-round effort and not just a one-week stand.

"Our show is the culmination of all last year's effort on the farms and in school extension and vocational classes," Miles Horst, state agriculture secretary, said.

Nothing that is displayed in the huge farm show building here is prepared on the "spur of the moment," the secretary emphasized.

"All entries are the tops in their respective fields," Horst said after viewing the 13 acres of displays. "The lesser lights are weeded out in competition in local communities and fairs."

An estimated 150,000 persons visited the show yesterday bringing the total to 280,000—some 5,000 short of last year's record two-day total. The show continues through Friday.

The secretary cited the massive People's Pageant staged in the farm show area last night before 10,000 persons as another example of protracted effort. A cast of 800 presented "Susquehanna," a dramatic account of Pennsylvania's early history.

Other tens of thousands from all over the commonwealth and adjoining states, marveling at the variety of exhibits in the Farm Show halls, had further visual proof of Horst's statement.

Take some of yesterday's prize winners for example. Pennsylvania's corn king, William H. Oaks and son, of Greencastle, Franklin County, received a huge gold trophy. It was awarded on the basis of having led all corn producers in the past year.

Benefit Card Party Arranged

Portland—Mrs. Lela Randolph, local chairman of the March of Dimes drive, has announced that the annual benefit card party will be held Feb. 20 in the Village Barn. Mrs. Randolph, who has successfully filled the post of the dime drive in the past is also local postmistress.

The father-son team, winner of the corn-growing title twice before was presented with the giant trophy at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Crop Improvement Association.

Tomato growers also were in the limelight for their year-long efforts. Here, youth, another point of emphasis in the farm show, was honored. Ten-year old Howard Frey, Lehighton RD. 2, Carbon County, received a prize for having the highest yield for growers with one to three acres.

Schoolboy Frey reported a yield of 26.7 tons per acre. Harold L. Crumline, Myerstown R. D. 2, Lebanon County, won awards for the highest yield and quality with eight or more acres.

Willis Sechstr, Felton, RD. 2, York County, reported the highest yield in the three to eight acre class with Artie Kremsner, Catawissa RD. 1, Columbia County, judged first in that tomato group.

Pocono Lake Men Enter Sawing Event

A father and son-in-law team from Pocono Lake is expected to provide the stiffest competition for other contestants in the annual cross-cut sawing event on the night of Jan. 15 at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Robert A. Warner and his son-in-law, William Wildrick, both of Pocono Lake, have taken second place in the event during the last three annual contests.

Last year's winners—Charles and Jacob Sult of Lycoming County—are not eligible for competition this year, according to the rules of the contest.

The winners two years ago did not file an entry blank in the event in time to qualify for this year's contest. Most observers, therefore, feel Warner and Wildrick will have a clear field for a first prize in the 1953 event.

Also entered in the cross-cut event are Robert A. Warner's two sons, William and Albert, also of Pocono Lake.

The Warners have been consistent winners in local and State competitions for many years.

Draper To Keep Job Temporarily

Paris (AP)—U. S. Ambassador William H. Draper Jr. announced yesterday that at President-elect Eisenhower's request he will stay on several months longer as U. S. special representative in Europe and permanent representative on the NATO Council.

Last October, Draper informed President Truman he wanted to quit public life this January, regardless of the presidential election outcome.

A tree branch, ten inches in diameter, crashed down from the tree in front of Mrs. C. Faulkenhagen's Main Street residence on Thursday night, narrowly missing her porch roof. Many large branches were strewn along Main Street Friday morning, and the power line completely severed at Meyer's Antique Store. Up on Foxtown Hill, a tree bent so low with its load of ice that it blocked most of the road in front of Benjamin Haney's home. Cars had only a narrow lane on Haney's side of the road for traffic. The tree had to be chopped away to release it. Cherry Creek was a strange sight with all the trees along its banks bent down until they hung in the creek.

Too Long an Interval

There is still an excessively—and dangerously—long interval between the outgoing and the incoming administrations in our government in Washington.

Between the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations, the interval between Election Day and Inauguration Day was four months. That was provided for in our original Constitution, when Congressmen and government officials had to rely on horse-drawn coaches for their transportation.

The interval was shortened by Constitutional amendment during the Roosevelt administration. It is now about two and a half months, but still much too long in this age of aviation and instantaneous communications by phone, radio and television.

An interval of two and a half months affords a defeated administration countless opportunities for committing the nation to policies that the people may have rejected at the polls. It permits the muddying of waters in diplomatic affairs. It permits the head of a rejected administration to give White House prestige to possible outbursts of anger or resentment against a victorious candidate or his party.

It is certainly not in the national interest to have a lame-duck government for two and a half months in an age when a new Congress and a new Administration can be assembled in a matter of days.

We quite evidently need another amendment to our Constitution to begin a newly elected administration within a week or two after the late of the presidential election.

March of Dimes

The annual drive for funds by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is on this month in this and other areas of the country. It will need to be a most impressive procession if the "March of Dimes" is to carry on its fight against this dread scourge, for it has exhausted funds after a year in which this country was hard-hit by polio.

In 1952, infantile paralysis struck some 55,000 persons, mostly children, as usual. In Pennsylvania, notably the Williamsport area, the disease hit with particularly hard blows. There were numerous deaths, and those who were fortunate enough to come through require long and expensive treatment to straighten their crippled limbs. The heavy carry-over of cases requiring care will exert a burden on the Foundation's financial resources.

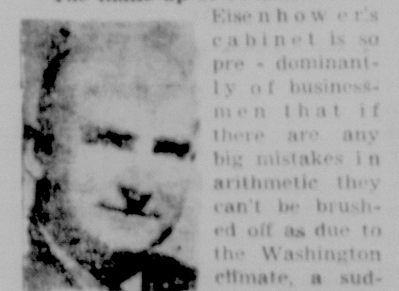

Besides money with which to carry on the vital work of treatment, the Foundation needs funds with which to support research. Last year marked the first in which cheering news was reported in the fight against the disease. Gamma globulin, a blood fraction, was found to provide some degree of temporary immunity.

The goal is a lasting preventive that will bring under control this horrible scourge. Your dimes will help make that goal possible. Give so that we may soon achieve that happy day.

During the Civil war some of the first volunteer Union troops sent to Washington were housed in the Senate and House chambers of the Capitol.

The Once Over —by H. I. Phillips

Stand By Our New Routine
The make-up of President-elect Eisenhower's cabinet is pre-dominantly of business-men that if there are any big mistakes in arithmetic they can't be brushed off as due to the Washington climate, a sudden line squall or a canasta game with a dizzy economic expert. In the entire cabinet there is not a man with a touch of Houdini, the Fairy Godmother, Merlin or a "Break the Bank" master of ceremonies in his make-up. Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp have had the contract cancelled. Nobody is going to get into the act on a claim he can wave a wand over a pumpkin and transform it into a royal coach on the Fort Knox route.

The Washington picture after January 20, is going to be hard to recognize. In it will be clearly visible, even on foggy days, men who believe in old-fashioned arithmetic, decimal points in the right places, bookkeeping done without mirrors, balanced budgets, thrift, commonsense and fewer ciphers in mathematical totals. There isn't a man in the bunch distinguished for corruption fits when confronted with an assertion it is a good idea to make both ends meet, keep out of the red and insist on the right change from a dollar bill. You can check on Ike's cabinet from left to right without putting the finger on a guy who concedes a two-foot putt, throws away a cigar before it is smoked two-thirds of the way, gets the village idiot to do his homework, thinks he moves faster between two floors if he sits down on an escalator or pauses to give a salute when passing a crap game. Over no office will be found the Latin equivalent of "It's Only Money." "If You Don't See What You Want Ask For It," and "Bingo Played Here."

It's hard to find in the new government a man who has had time to write a book, develop a wider hammock, get out a deluxe map of fishing resorts, master the ukelele in 10 lessons, lecture on Utopia, do the egg trick, campaign for whither, sand on tropical beaches or invent a musical nutcracker. These boys are practical, fact-facing lads who, with a couple of exceptions, always thought the mathematics teacher was right, never sought a Phi Beta Kappa key in the Dream Book course and didn't write their congressman if they found themselves perspiring.

Whether the country can stand it is a question. And we don't know how the public, schooled for 20 years in the "take it easy or you'll sprain an impulse" mood will accept the change. The idea of not only saving Red Riding hoods' grandma from the big bad wolf but coming to her rescue with blank checks, orchids and an offer to paint her house inside and out has become fairly fixed in the public mind. "Tradition" and "orthodoxy" have become dirty words. "Drop dead" has become the routine answer to "But can we afford this?" A return to a truth-or-consequences system may be hard to take, huh.

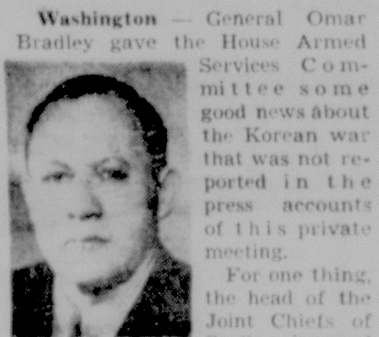

"Will swap Ring Crosby record for anything I can use. D616" says an add in Yankee Magazine. . . . Come, come, they're not that much of a bore. . . . We came out of the New York bus strike with a renewed appreciation of the surface car. . . . Just getting back aboard a bus again depressed us and filled us anew with the feeling that the chickens packed into crate-laden poultry trucks are always laughing at human beings. . . . We never board a bus, dodge one or watch one pass without wondering what our fathers and mothers, accustomed to the infinitely more considerate and kindly ways of the surface car, would think if they had to endure the depressing, catch-as-catch-can, every-man-for-himself mood of city bus transportation. . . . Who remembers when the conductor helped old ladies onto a car, when the motorman got fired if he made abrupt starts or stops, when courtesy was insisted upon by the operators and when you could safely ride a mile or two without a clothespin on your nose? . . . Arthur Godfrey's secret as a top entertainer is his poise, his matter-of-fact manner and the fact he never breaks his neck to get a laugh. . . . Grave diggers struck in six cemeteries in New York the other day. . . . It's a grim era when a man can't make his last journey without bumping into a labor dispute. . . . The historic World Building in Park Row, New York, is to be torn down. . . . To any newspaperman who worked in Gotham two or more decades ago this is a saddening news item. . . . It was once the very center of newspaper life on Manhattan Island. . . . The Sun and the Tribune stood a few steps from it, and other great journals were nearby. . . . In City Hall Park you could always meet a dozen newspapermen. . . . And there was something about the World Building and its golden tower which was symbolic of a dazzling newspaper era.

WAR FRONT, HOME FRONT

Bradley Says U. N. Military Position Is At Its Finest

Robert S. Allen Reports - - - By Robert S. Allen

Washington — General Omar Bradley gave the House Armed Services Committee some good news about the Korean war that was not reported in the press accounts of this private meeting.

For one thing, the head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff stated flatly that the UN military position is the best it has ever been.

As a striking illustration of that, Bradley disclosed that the three U. S. divisions are now in mobile reserve. That is half of U. S. Army strength in Korea, and the first time we have had such powerful reserves since the start of the two-and-a-half year old conflict.

Following are other significant developments revealed by Bradley:

UN forces have reached sufficient strength to hammer their way to the Yalu River if it is decided the cost in casualties of such an offensive is worth it. Bradley expressed no opinion on this question.

Eleven South Korean divisions are now in the battlelines. That is more than twice the number of American divisions. In addition another ROK division is awaiting equipment to complete training, and three new divisions are in process of being organized. By next summer, there will be 15 South Korean divisions—plus an estimated 25,000 other ROK troops serving with U. S. units, including the Marine Division in Korea.

U. S. forces hold only 25 percent of the front lines, and of that area 9 percent is held by troops from Puerto Rico. In recent weeks, these men have suffered more casualties than any other Americans.

What it's all about—Representative Dewey Short, Mo., new Republican chairman of the Committee and a sharp critic of foreign policies of the outgoing Truman Administration, asked General Bradley one blunt question.

"What is our objective in Korea," demanded Short. "What are we fighting there for?"

"Our objective in Korea is the same today as it was when we decided to make a stand in that country," replied the head of the Joint Chiefs. "That objective is to stop Communist aggression and to unify Korea under democratic rule."

"What are the prospects of ending this war?"

"That is a political question that is up to the new President and the new Congress," said Bradley. "The new Administration and the new Congress will have to decide whether our present objective and policies in Korea shall be continued or some other course undertaken. Personally, I think our present policies."

Danny Kaye says that one of the most intriguing facets of Producer Sam Goldwyn's personality is his unpredictability. When George Balanchine, for instance, was engaged some years ago to do the choreography for The Goldwyn Follies, everyone, particularly the boss, wanted to know the meaning of an elaborate ballet he rehearsed for weeks. Balanchine found it hard to explain in English. "It sees like thees," he finally conceded. "Zere ees a hundred girls on ze left of ze stage. Zey represents ze positive. On ze right of ze stage zere ees a hundred boys. Zey represent ze negative. Zey do a queeck dance and poof! Ze girls—ze positive—are now on ze right, and ze boys—ze negative—are now on ze left."

Everybody looked pretty dubious but Maestro Goldwyn. He slapped his hand down on the table and announced, "I LIKE IT."

Best' And 'Worst' Congressman Are Matter Of Selector's Own Opinion

These Days - - - - - By George Sokolsky

Our Worst Congressman
It seems to be a magazine stunt to have an article during an election campaign to list the "best" and the "worst" Congressmen. The criteria for selection are rarely made clear to the reader and the whole thing usually comes down to the personal and private opinion of the writer, which, as in the case of all of us, is worth precisely what the reader thinks it is.

"Redbook," which I see announces itself as a magazine for "young adults," which may mean anybody from Elizabeth Taylor to Bernard Baruch, published in its October issue such an article on "Our Worst Congressmen." It states, in an introduction, that its reporter, who is supposed to be "hard-hitting," as though he were a prizefighter, talked to 52 persons, consisting of "six Senators, one ex-Senator, five Representatives, 13 Congressional assistants, nine newspapermen, 10 leaders of better-government organizations and eight other persons familiar with Congress." No names are given, either to make it possible to appraise the value of their opinions or to check with them.

So far as I am concerned, no sources being provided, the article remains the personal opinion of Howard Whitman, the writer, who is introduced in no manner other than that he is "hard-hitting." However, it is interesting that among those he selects are: Senator Pat McCarran, Senator

William Langer, Representative James Murphy, Representative Fred Busbey, Senator William E. Jenner, Senator John E. Rankin, Representative Clare Hoffman, Representative John B. Williams, Senator Joe McCarthy, Senator Zales N. Ecton, Senator George W. Malone.

The subhead says: "Here are the Capitol Hill misfits—aged or ill-equipped or ornery men—who are hobbling our government. Some can be ousted next month—perhaps by the ballots of young voters."

Now, let us have a look at some so selected. The objection to Senator Malone—who was re-elected—is apparently that he gets up on the floor of the Senate and makes "assine statements." No quotations of "assinity" are given. I suppose I am on Senator Malone's mailing list and have read many of his speeches and I find them choiceful of valuable material. He happens to be opposed to Dean Acheson's foreign policy.

Senator Malone is not a polished orator. He is an engineer and brings to his problems the mental rigidities of one engaged in engineering, which is very different from the viewpoint of lawyers and writers. It is useful to have in the Senate a man of his experience.

We come to Senator Pat McCarran, who is one of the most effective men in Congress. His work as chairman of the Judiciary and Internal Security committees has been outstandingly successful. The Internal Security Committee's investigations of the Institute of Pacific Relations opened doors that have exposed a large measure of dangerous subversion.

As for Senator William Jenner—who was re-elected—the only crime mentioned is that he attacked General George Marshall for his failures, which have proved so costly to the American people in Korea.

I could have found 52 persons who would pick another list of worsts. Their list would include Senators Lehman of New York, O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Morse of Oregon, Murray of Montana and lots of others! You can have your choice, although I do not know who is the best or the worst, because I never find that anyone is so bad as to be the worst or anyone so perfect as to be the best.

As Milton Berle once said about his competitor on television, Bishop Fulton Sheen, "I would not mind competing with Arthur Godfrey, but who wants to be opposite God?"

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

"You are just too darn good for this world," writes a Bridgeport, Conn., reader. "As a matter of fact you make me sick."

"At least once a week my wife shows me one of your columns and holds you up as an example of noble manhood."

"You must either be too d--- old to enjoy life or there is just no joy in you. Not that I have any ambition to be like you. But how do you do it? Maybe I'll try it some time just to find out how it feels."

Since this was not an anonymous letter, I feel that I should answer it.

And since others may feel that way, too, I shall answer it here, rather than write the fellow (it was a MAN) a personal letter.

As far as "old age" is concerned, I can assure my friend that I am still many years away from the social security age, when I shall be able to collect my $17 a month and take it easy on that magnificent sum.

As far as enjoying life is concerned, it just happens that I enjoy life tremendously and that my kind of enjoyment gives me no morning-after headaches.

To be frank, I have had just about every kind of experience a human being CAN have.

I used to drink like a fish and found that the after-effect of drinking is not worth the stupefying pleasure one gets out of a few snorts. And it takes much more courage to say "No" than "OK."

When I was much younger I used to be able to stay up until three and four in the morning. But I got fired from a good job once the day after I hadn't gone to bed at all the night before. For a couple of weeks after that I didn't have a job and I was broke. Then I found out what it

My New York —By Mel Heimer

New York — I got into one of my customary arguments about Penn Station and Grand Central Terminal the other day, and this time I lost. My opponent threw the book at me.

We have a lot of railroad stations in and around the five boroughs of New York, but those two are the big Berthas, Penn Station being the big depot for Pennsylvania and Long Island railroad trains and Grand Central being the home of New York Central and New York, New Haven and Hartford caboose.

They are as unlike as Katharine Hepburn and Bety Hutton and I always argue that Penn Station is by far the more attractive of the two because it is big, dingy, echoing, gloomy and altogether like some of those European depots, like the Gare St. Lazare in Paris, which look the way train stations should look. Grand Central is airy, clean, shiny and altogether like a bank. This is a railroad station?

When my foe the other day got through with me, however, I had a little more respect for G. C. He started off by pointing out that 61,000 passengers pass through the place each year and that 30,000 men and women can find standing room in the station at one time—and then he went on from there, flooding me with amazing figures that I now pass along to you.

The present Grand Central Terminal, which was fashioned in 1913 at a cost of $65 million, is almost completely underground, like an iceberg that is seven-eighths below the sea. It is 110 feet deep—or around nine stories—and has two track levels, upper and lower. They contain 67 tracks and over these tracks about 510 trains enter or leave daily. In 1902 there was a train collision in a Grand Central tunnel that cost 17 lives but there hasn't been a really serious wreck since that time.

The legitimate business in the terminal—railroad business—employs about 3,100 men and women, but there are another 3,000 who work in the shops and offices in the building proper. There are around two hundred shops and restaurants in the Terminal, and 30 magazine stands. A pride and joy is the famous Oyster Bar, which, I was informed caustically, peddles five million oysters and clams to brave souls each year. I prefer hamburgers.

The main room on the upper level is called the Concourse. It is 108 feet by 185 feet and its staggering sky-blue ceiling is 117 feet in the air, as well as being 23,728 feet square. It is decorated with the constellations of Aquarius, Pisces, Gemini, Musca, Orion, Taurus, Cancer, Aries, Triangulum and Pegasus, in gold, and cost $40,000 when painted by Paul Helli, a Frenchman. Astronomers would go nuts looking at it. The stars are painted on in reverse.

The focal point of Grand Central Terminal is the upper level information booth and surrounding this is what is known as the Golden Clock. Actually it's brass and is one of around 80 clocks visible to the public in the terminal. A Swiss named Jake Baehold, 50 years on the job, takes care of it and also is responsible for about a 1,000 more clocks on and along the tracks for about 70 miles outside the station.

Grand Central Terminal was built originally by Commodore Cornelius Van Derbilt in 1869 and a statue of the old boy, looking extremely meditative, is situated now outside the windows on the Concourse's south side, facing down lower Park Avenue. The terminal's official address is 8th E. 42nd St.

There is a police station, with about 40 cops in the terminal, along with two morgues—one for photos and one for what morgues were meant for—and the word is that two or three persons die per month in the station and on trains entering it. At one end of the Concourse, is a color transparency measuring 18 feet by 60 feet, undoubtedly one of the terminal's show pieces.

Best known of all the inhabitants of Grand Central is Judy, a 9-year-old cat which sits on the newspapers at a stand near the newsreel movie house and occasionally hauls herself down and into the cinema. It was from that movie house that one commuter, possibly a little holed, came darting out one day with the question "Have we reached 14th street yet?"

YMCA To Conduct $350,000 Building Fund Drive In Spring

Amount Needed To Complete Three Units

Directors of the Monroe County YMCA voted at a meeting last night to conduct a $350,000 building fund campaign in the Spring.

The $350,000 figure represents the amount needed to assure the completion of the three-unit building program adopted by the board some time ago.

The board has $250,000 available at present to finance erection of the first unit, the main building facing Main St. Bids covering the three units will be opened Feb. 10 and will be submitted to the board at a meeting that night.

Two new directors and five hold-over members of the old board were elected at last night's meeting. The board then reorganized for the coming year, retaining the old officers headed by D. W. Frankenkfield as president.

John R. Wilson, general secretary, informed the board of the visit he and Holt Wyckoff, co-chairman of the local Y building committee, had made to New York City Jan. 5 when plans for the financial campaign were discussed with Emma Reeves Rowley, of the Finance Service Bureau.

A letter from the bureau stated that Lester M. Ellis had been secured to conduct the campaign. He is expected to arrive here about Jan. 26, when he will set up the machinery for the drive, which is expected to get under way in March.

Mr. Ellis, a former Y secretary, has been engaged in financial campaigns with much success, it was pointed out, just completing one on the west coast.

The board gave its approval of the campaign plans.

J. Albert Groner, first vice president, presided at the meeting in place of Mr. Frankenkfield who was unable to attend.

The directors elected for a three-year term follow: D. W. Frankenkfield, J. A. Groner, Earl Groner, Roy M. Houser, Mrs. Clifford R. Heller, Glenn Sanborn Jr., Holt Wyckoff and E. H. Wyckoff.

Mr. Sanborn and Holt Wyckoff, the new members, succeed Fred C. Fatzinger and Frank LeBar, who were not candidates for reelection. Messrs. Fatzinger (an original member of the board) and LeBar, both past presidents, were made honorary members of the board in recognition for past services. Dr. J. E. Noonan was chairman of the nominating committee.

The officers re-elected in addition to President Frankenkfield are: First vice president, J. A. Groner; second vice president, Edward C. Hess; secretary, Charles A. Keiper; and treasurer, Roy M. Houser.

The tellers for the election were Harry Kresge and Mrs. W. R. Toewe.

Earl Groner, superintendent of schools, thanked Secretary Wilson for making the Y gymnasium available last Friday night for entertaining the young people composing the Northeast Pennsylvania school band when the storm knocked out the power at the high school, cancelling the concert planned.

General Secretary Wilson's report for December showed the many activities carried out, especially during the holiday period when he said the Y was crowded with young people every day.

Wilson called attention to the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y group collecting food which was distributed to needy families at Christmas. The Mother's club was commended for its activities including sales to complete a fund of $1,000 to be donated to the building fund.

The growth of the Industrial Management Club now numbering 105 members was mentioned, also the basketball competition with eight teams participating during the holidays.

The craft shop was also pointed out as a very busy place where many of the young people engaged in making various articles for Christmas presents.

The annual meeting of the directors when the various groups give reports of their activities will be held Tuesday, Feb. 10, place to be announced, at 6:30 p.m.

The board will meet at 6 p.m. when reports will be received on bids for the new buildings.

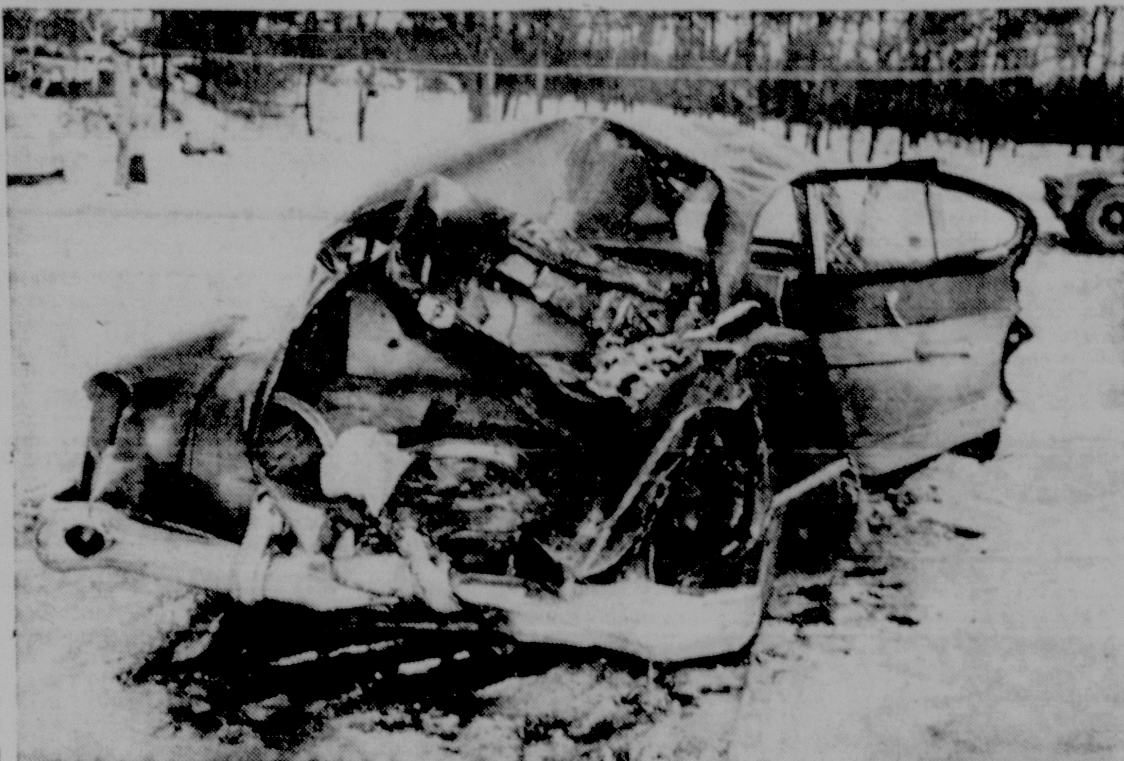

Board members in attendance at last night's meeting were: Chairman A. F. Everitt, C. A. Keiper, J. F. Noonan, Rev. F. H. Blatt, Thomas Kistler, Harry Kresge, Mrs. W. R. Toewe, Ted D. Hoffman, Earl F. Groner, Jesse Flory, Edward C. Hess, Frank L. Stackhouse, James Kitzon, Roy M. Houser and General Secretary Wilson.

42 Juniors Take Special Test Series

A series of six tests were given to 42 East Stroudsburg High School Juniors yesterday afternoon. The tests will help school officials determine adjustment problems and potential professional fields for the individual students.

Administering the tests was Walter Smith, assistant director of the Test Scoring Department at Drexel Institute of Technology.

Included in the series were the California short form mental maturity test; American psychological examination for college freshmen, a co-operative reading test; the Kuder interest preference test and the Bell adjustment test.

Students completed the series at 3:15 p.m.

Modernize Thinking, Stores Told

New York, (AP)—A retailers' convention here was told yesterday that the independently-operated neighborhood department store and the sales girl with a smile will more than hold their own this year against chain store and self-service competition.

But, speakers at the 42nd annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association emphasized, some of the independents may have to modernize their thinking.

Max Hess, president of Hess Brothers, Allentown, Pa., told the meeting that independents generally can look for an increase of 5 to 10 per cent in sales in 1953—provided they adopt alert, aggressive merchandising techniques and spend more money on newspaper advertising.

Hess suggested that independent retailers hike their newspaper advertising budgets by 10 to 15 per cent. A good part of this extra money, he said, would be used for promoting business on slack days.

Chicago, (AP)—Businessmen will need new products and markets and increased demand to sustain a normal economy when defense spending is cut back, a spokesman for the retail dry goods industry said yesterday.

But it is "up-to-busness to step up the efficiency of distribution to match production," J. Gordon Dakin, general manager of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said. His remarks were made in a statement issued in connection with the current International Winter Home Furnishings Market, now in its second week.

Blazing Curtains Summon Firemen

Repercussions of the weekend storm had East Stroudsburg firemen on the go once yesterday: window curtains caught fire from a kerosene lamp at the residence of Grover Counterman, on Barnum St. The small blaze was out when firemen arrived about 5:35 p.m.

Stroud Township volunteers answered an alarm at 12:45 p.m. at Fabel's Flats, found only a small rubbish fire being tended by two men.

SPCA Custodian Reports Animals Survived Storm Thanks To Gifts Of Food

"Christmas presents" donated to the SPCA shelter on Foxtown Hill helped to bring dozens of animals safely through the weekend storm. This was the story unfolded to SPCA members at the monthly meeting in Stroudsburg last night by custodian George Wakefield.

In the Christmas season, Wakefield had issued a call for "Christmas presents" for his charges—in the form of needed fat drippings, lard, canned dog or cat food, kennels or dog houses no longer in use.

Monroe County people responded generously, and the Wakefields put away a good stock of food for the animals (The SPCA exists only on donations, gets no help from any other agency).

When the storm knocked out power, there was no water at the shelter with which to prepare food mixes in the large quantities necessary. Some water was obtained by melting ice and snow; but what saved the day, Wakefield said, was the "Christmas presents" of canned dog and cat food which had been donated a month earlier.

The shelter still has a problem: It needs burlap bags, Wakefield told the members. He asked them to keep their eyes open for any type of burlap for bedding in the doghouses . . . old, new, or in the form of sacks.

He reported 57 animals—including 13 cats—processed and cared for at the shelter during December. Seven lost dogs were picked up and later returned to their owners. The shelter placed 32 dogs in homes for adoption, and six cats.

Waring Group Entertains At Concerts

A group of entertainers affiliated with the Waring Enterprises contributed their talents last night to a drive for funds on behalf of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in Delaware Water Gap.

Two concerts were given last night—one in each of the two churches—with the Presbyterian concert given at 7 p.m. and the second program presented in the Methodist church sanctuary at 8:30 p.m.

Audiences made up of members of the congregations and residents of the community attended both concerts.

Featured performers were Richard Lindroth, organist, who played a series of short selections by outstanding composers for that instrument; baritone Leonard Kranendonk, who sang "Bless This House," "Open the Gates of the Temple," "I Know My Redeemer Lives" and "I Heard a Forest Praying"; Frances Wyatt, soprano, who sang Romberg's "One Kiss" and three humorous "folk songs," patterned after Chinese compositions.

Mrs. Wyatt concluded her portion of the concert with "The Italian Street Song" and "Letitia's aria" from the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "The Old Maid and the Thief." Bob Sands, tenor with the Waring organization, sang Leoncavallo's "Mattiata," "It's a Lovely Day Tomorrow" and "The Donkey Serenade" from the Rudio Friml operetta "The Firefly."

A string quartet—consisting of John Richardson, Pete Buonconsiglio, Henry Bryan and Robert Gary—played the first movement of Anton Dvorak's "American Quartet," the "Andante Cantabile" and "The Mill."

Ennis Davis, education director of Waring Enterprises, introduced the performers, all of whom contributed their time and talents to the worthwhile community project. Mr. Davis opened his introductory remarks by expressing the pleasure he and other members of the Waring organization felt in "having among" the people of Monroe County and Delaware Water Gap "as neighbors."

Dr. Earl Wilhoite arranged the appearance of the artists on the program while publicity was supervised by Margaret Maxwell, from the magazine "Music Journal."

With 20 members in attendance, incoming President George Walker and new Secretary Paul Cortwright took their chairs for the first time.

In other actions, the firemen took in one new member, Rev. Edgar Hersh, pastor of the Mount Pocono Methodist Church and set the date for their annual summer carnival as July 27 through Aug. 1.

The tithe—giving a tenth of produce to the Church—began in ancient times as a government tax and was later extended to religion.

Eleven-Year-Old Bank Stockholder Attends Meeting

An 11-year-old boy is taking more than just a casual interest in the stock he holds in Monroe County National Bank, East Stroudsburg.

Harry Dingman Lewis, sixth-grade student at the Laboratory School on the campus of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College made a personal appearance at yesterday's meeting in the bank to cast his ballot for directors.

Son of Attorney Kennard Lewis, the youngster received his stock from his grandfather, Irvin B. Edinger about five years ago. When the proxy form sent by the bank reached his home recently young Harry wanted to know all the answers. Told by his father he could either sign the proxy and return it to the bank, or appear in person, Harry decided to see for himself, and sat through the session on the end of his chair—not missing a thing.

THE CHELSEA although small in area, has a compact floor plan which provides for three medium-sized bedrooms as well as a roomy living room and a light, well arranged kitchen that is large enough for dining. There are seven closets. Each bedroom has six feet of closet space. Coat closets are placed at each of the entrances. The linen closet is located next to the bathroom. There is excellent lighting and ample wall space for the placing of furniture in the bedrooms. The kitchen cabinets and equipment are arranged on two walls, leaving room for a table and chairs beside the window in the rear of the room. A storage cabinet occupies the inside wall. The exterior wall and roof lines are straight and simple for more economical construction. The wide overhanging eaves form protection for the front entrance door. The exterior finish is siding or shingles for the walls and asphalt shingles for the roof. Dimensions are 36 feet wide by 28 feet deep with a full basement. Floor area is 1030 square feet with 20,085 cubic feet. For further information about 'The Chelsea,' write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn.

Tips About Medicine Cabinets

Size, construction and finish are the important points to check when buying a medicine cabinet for the bathroom, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

The cabinet should be as large as possible. Most home owners realize too late when they move into their new or modernized home that their medicine cabinet has not kept up with other improvements. Like the bathroom itself, says the Bureau, no medicine cabinet was ever too large.

Construction Should Be Checked. Cabinet buyers should also for such things as: Is it of one piece drawn seamless construction? Are the corners easy to clean? Are there cracks where moisture can settle and cause corrosion? Are the shelves removable for easy cleaning?

The buyer should look for such things as the hinge construction, that is, whether the hinge is a common butt hinge or whether it is a full-length piano type hinge, and whether the hinge is enameled or stainless steel, whether the shelf supports are removable for easy cleaning and whether the shelf supports are stainless steel or plain white enameled, which are stationary, making it difficult to clean the cabinet.

It should not be assumed that a medicine cabinet is of top quality if the finish is merely white paint. A quality cabinet has a baked enamel finish applied over metal which has been bonderized, preferably bonderized after forming. Such a cabinet is highly resistant to corrosion.

Another point to consider is the economy of purchasing a lighted cabinet. With lighted medicine cabinets, there is no need for an overhead light or wall switch. The cabinet lights are sufficient to illuminate the entire bathroom.

The buyer should also check to see if the cabinet light fixtures have the convenience outlet for electric razor, space heater, etc. Finally, the customer should not accept any lighted cabinet unless it bears the Underwriters' label. This label should appear on the cabinet body or door back indicating that not only have the component parts been checked by Underwriters but the completely assembled unit has been submitted for Underwriters' inspection.

Cedar Closet Door Must Fit Tightly

Closets lined with red cedar wood, as they are ordinarily installed, are of doubtful value in protecting clothing from moth attack. Usually the closets are not tightly enough constructed to retain the emanations from the cedar wood in sufficient strength to kill the worms.

The mere odor of cedar does not keep moths from crawling or flying into a closet or from damaging the clothing or furs. In justice to red cedar wood, it should be stated that closets very tightly constructed with the red heart wood and

Selection Of Site Should Be Ruled By House Style

The home buyer who is starting from scratch and selecting his lot this spring with the idea of building a home on it later this year or next has some important thinking to do, says the United States Savings and Loan League.

Making up your mind about the kind of house you will want to build on the lot is pretty essential before the choice of the lot is made, the league advises.

"Too many people tend to regard the purchase of a lot as a decision distinct from the buying of a home, when the two are actually closely inter-related and inter-dependent," the league says.

"Step number one, after that, is to check the zoning and deed restrictions for the subdivision in which the lot is located. You will want to know, first, if the type of property you expect to build is legal. Then you will want to be sure that no garages and gas stations are going to spring up on the next corner, and that tall apartment buildings won't be erected to shut out your light and air five or six years from now.

"Too often the family is ready to start building its 'dream home' and finds to its dismay that the lot previously purchased is inadequate or at least wholly undesirable for the kind of house chosen. A recent change in the proportionate dimensions of small houses is causing much of this consternation. Many home buyers in recent years bought narrow lots, planning to put up a bungalow or a two-story rather square house. Now the tastes of many of them have changed because the single-story ranch-type dwelling which needs a wider lot is gaining popularity."

The league cautions that the type and size of the lot selected by the home buyers also should take into consideration such factors as a play yard for children and the area for landscaping. Says the league:

"Every lot must be expected to serve a variety of purposes. It must not only be the site for the placement of the house, but it should also furnish play and landscaping areas, a drive for the family automobile and sidewalks."

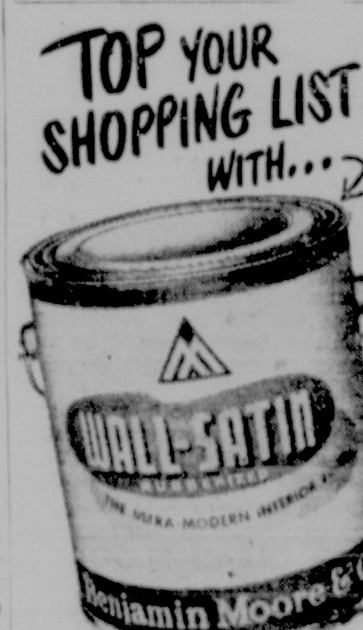

Still another concern of the real estate lot buyer, the league said, is whether the vacant property is served by or is easily accessible to public utilities such as water, gas, telephone service, drainage and electricity.

Doors Fold When Space Limited

The most difficult door problem likely to face the home planner when a door is necessary and yet there is not enough space in which one may operate.

One solution to this problem which conforms to modern space-saving requirements is the accordion-type metal frames providing durable foundation to which fabrics may be attached and at the same time permit a wide choice of materials for the interior-decorating scheme.

In remodeling homes it is frequently possible to install accordion-type doors where there is not sufficient space for the swing area required by the regular type door.

Gilpin Heads Club's Polio Committee

Newfoundland—Homer L. Gilpin, South Sterling, has been appointed chairman of the Newfoundland Rotary Club's March of Dime committee.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Lorimer Brown, club president, at a joint meeting of the Mount Pocono Rotary club and the local Rotary group here Monday night.

Appeals for contributions will be mailed shortly to all residents of Greene and Dreher Townships, Gilpin said. The chairman has called a meeting of Rotary Club members for Thursday night for the purpose of addressing the mailing pieces.

The Rotarians heard Judge Clarence E. Bodie, president judge of Wayne County courts, cite the return to a sound fiscal policy, the waging of an unending battle against Communism and the strengthening of the moral fibre of the American people as the greatest safeguards in the preservation of the American way of life.

The jurist was introduced by Joseph Jacobs, program chairman. Louis DePaul, president of the Mount Pocono club, also spoke briefly.

Church will meet Wednesday for an all day quilting party at the home of Mrs. A. T. Blakeslee Sr., Lt. Comm. Eugene Kerriek of Washington, D. C., spent the weekend with relatives at Stoddardsville. John Bush and Clara Bush, students at East Stroudsburg State Teacher's College, spent the weekend at their respective homes.

House Committee To Call Justice Tom Clark To Explain Shelving Of Mail Fraud Case

Washington (AP)—Rep. Keating (R-NY) said last night House investigators will call on Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark to testify about a major mail fraud case the Justice Department shelved in 1946.

The file on the case, Atty. Gen. McGranery announced earlier, will be turned over to a House judiciary subcommittee which has been investigating the Justice Department since last Spring. Keating is slated to head the group when it is reformed under the Republican administration.

"This is another case on which I feel it will be essential for us to hear from Justice Clark," said Keating.

The New Yorker had indicated previously the committee would want to question Clark about several cases which were handled during the years he was in the Justice Department.

Clark was head of the department's criminal division at the time a federal grand jury at Topeka, Kans., returned an indictment in the mail fraud case in 1944. He was attorney general when it was dismissed in 1946. McGranery said the matter which the government abandoned by "nolle prosequere" action more than six years ago was "perhaps one of the biggest mail fraud cases ever to be filed by the government."

The case involved the Roy E. Crummer companies with offices in Chicago, Ill., Topeka, Kans., and in the states of Nevada and Florida.

T. Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general, was then in charge of the department's criminal prosecutions. Caudle was dismissed from government service by President Truman late in 1951 for "outside activities."

The Justice Department gave this chronology of the case involving the Crummer interests, dealing in securities:

"A Topeka, Kans., federal grand jury returned an indictment Aug. 3, 1944, against Roy E. Crummer and 10 other individuals, as well as two corporations, R. E. Crummer Company and the Crummer Company.

"The indictment charged violation of the Securities Act of 1933 and the mail fraud statute, alleging use of the mails to defraud. It alleged that the defendants schemed to defraud bondholders of Citrus County, Fla., and the town of Panama City, Fla., and used the mails to execute their scheme.

"The defendants filed a demurrer to the indictment, which was sustained by the trial court.

The government appealed and the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed and held that the indictment was a good pleading.

"Thereafter, on June 10, 1946, the indictments were nolle prossed by the government."

This is the original Gutenberg press, along with Bible he printed.

Vast modern press of today from which newspapers roll endlessly.

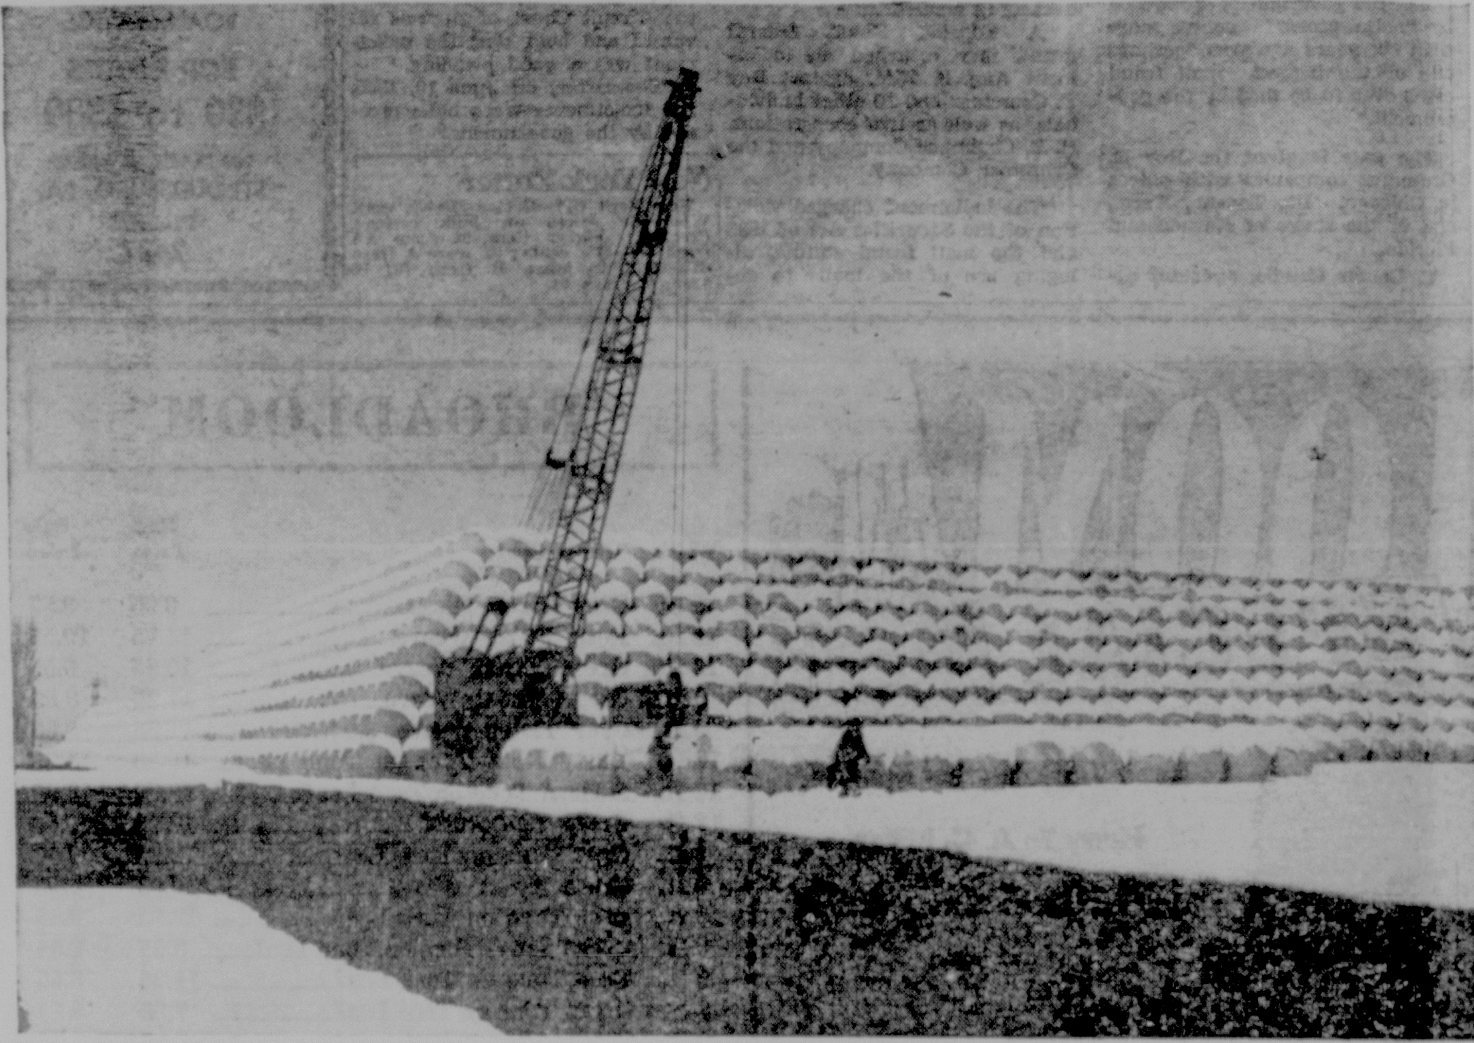

NATIONAL PRINTING WEEK, Jan. 11-17, spotlights one of the world's most vital developments, movable type, an invention generally credited to Johann Gutenberg, a 15th century printer of Mainz, Germany. Before, book pages were laboriously cut out of wood, a single block for each page. In the five centuries which followed Gutenberg, his simple press became an intricate, Gargantuan monster which can print millions of entire newspapers in hours and which costs hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Class Visits Studios Of Radio Station

A senior technical class in English at East Stroudsburg High School, under the direction of Mrs. Kathleen Butz and student-teacher Joseph Maiorillo, was given a demonstration of the part radio plays in communications this week by an on-the-spot visit to the studios of Radio Station WVPO.

Under the guidance of Maiorillo, the students were introduced to announcer-sports commentator Joe Whalen who conducted a complete guided tour of the station, pointing out interesting sidelights to the operation.

Whalen explained the procedures used by "disk jockeys" on their programs, showing the students how to "cue-in" records for fast starts. WVPO, Whalen said, receives popular phonograph records sometimes before stations in the "big cities" get their supply.

The announcer then showed the students the WVPO news room and explained how the station gets its news on the national and international level.

Whalen discussed the wide variety of entertainment offered by the local station. This included, according to Whalen, "Taylor Talks," "The Tex Ryan Show" and "Slim Heller."

While visiting the station the students heard the "Tex Ryan Show."

The tour of the radio station was a part of an experimental unit on communications by language which is being conducted by Mrs. Butz and Maiorillo.

Cattle Prepared For Slaughter

Washington (AP)—Farmers have a record number of cattle on heavy feed for the slaughter market, the Agriculture Department reported.

The number was estimated at 5,836,000 head compared with 5,024,000 a year ago and with 4,349,000 for the five-year (1947-51) January average.

These cattle are being fed grain and other concentrated feeds, and they will make up a large portion of the supply of better quality meat. The bulk of them will be sold for slaughter during the next eight months.

State Notes Decline In Relief Roles

Despite the prolonged steel strike during 1952, the total number of persons receiving public assistance in Pennsylvania decreased by nearly 31,000 or 12 per cent from the total for 1951.

The strike in July, throwing hundreds of steelworkers out of work and swelling the assistance rolls accordingly, did not disrupt the general downward trend in unemployment, however.

At the beginning of 1952, State public assistance officers noted, there were 257,862 persons on the rolls. At year's end there were only 226,763 dependents upon assistance from the State government.

Monroe County went along with the general trend. During the last half of December there were 850 persons on assistance rolls locally, representing approximately 2.5 per cent of the total population.

Of these 119 were for general assistance; 325 for old-age assistance; 322 for aid to dependent children; 40 for aid to the disabled and 44 for blind pensions (entire month).

A second increase in assistance rolls was noted by State headquarters for December. This was attributed to a seasonal slump in production and tourist employment areas.

Junior members and senior members expected to provide transportation will meet at Eighth and Monroe Sts., Stroudsburg, at 1:30 p. m. Saturday. Then they will move out to the area where the feeding stations will be erected. Each Saturday following, junior members will visit the stations to see the result, and to replenish food supplies.

Farm Employment Lowest In Years

158,434,000 Population Figure Set

The population of the United States on Jan. 1, 1953 was estimated at 158,434,000 by Director Roy V. Peel of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. This figure includes members of the armed forces overseas.

The Jan. 1 estimate represents an increase of 2,684,000 over the Jan. 1, 1952 estimate of 155,750,000 and an increase of 7,302,000 over the April 1, 1950 Census total of 151,132,000, including the armed forces outside the constitutional United States.

The population increase during 1952 represents the Nation's largest numerical gain for any single year in its history, and extends to the fifth year an average rate of growth of over 2,500,000 per year since 1947.

ing the last week of December. This number was 1 per cent smaller than a year ago.

Farm employment has been declining since the late '30s, reflecting marked increases in use of machinery and other labor-saving equipment.

The department also reported that farm wage rates have reached the highest level of record—3 per cent above a year ago.

High speed planes used by the NACA to determine what tomorrow's production models will be are lined up in front of a hangar at Edwards AFB. From left are Douglas D-558-II Skyrocket, revealed to have flown nearly 1,300 miles an hour; Douglas D-558-I; Bell X-5; Bell X-1; Northrop X-4, and (rear) Consolidated XF-92-A.

600 Miles An Hour? That's Slow Stuff At U. S. Air Force Base, Edwards, California

By Charles J. Thobaben

Central Press Staff Writer

Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.—This is where the United States Air Force lives, not in the glories of its past, but in the realities of its tomorrow.

This is where the 600-mile-an-hour jet of the type streaking through the skies of Korea today is regarded as mainly one of yesterday's events, where 600 miles an hour comparatively is standing still.

This is the home of the Douglas Skyrocket, whose nearly 1,300-mile-an-hour recorded speed illustrates quite nicely the terms in which the men and officers and civilian scientists of this base think. The Skyrocket, you must remember, is not the usual jet plane, but a rocket-propelled aircraft.

Backed by the scientists of the government's NACA laboratories and the research, experience and ingenuity of the nation's aircraft manufacturers, the Edwards personnel is determining through daily test flights of the many experimental models of combat aircraft just what problems must be solved and how they may be solved in the planes that USAF will be flying in a few years.

Edwards is admirably located to perform the missions assigned to it. The almost 200,000 acres of the base are near the center of the Mojave desert, providing a desirable remoteness for the conducting of tests on experimental aircraft and at the same time offering no hazard to the civil population.

Since it is only 60 miles northeast of Los Angeles, the flight test center also is convenient to the great west coast aircraft manufacturing plants.

However, perhaps the base's greatest single physical asset is the presence of Rogers (Muroc) Dry lake. Its 65 square miles of smooth clay and silt surface provide a huge natural landing field. The water that washes over it approximately two months of the year even results in a natural resurfacing.

The 360 emergency landings made on the lake bed in the past five years have saved an estimated $180 million in planes and equipment, not to mention human lives. Edwards has five major groups of testing facilities—a deceleration track, high speed track, precision bombing range, all-altitude speed course and a new rocket test station, completed in 1952.

The latter, which became operational only last March, provides laboratory space, shops and two big test stands on which rocket engines and missiles can be run through static tests either vertically or horizontally.

The two test tracks are generally the same in basic design, but the deceleration track is several years older and the knowledge gained from its operation was applied to the construction of the 10,000-foot high speed track, fastest railway in the world.

On this high speed track, a 3,000-pound sled is propelled along the perfectly straight track by a battery of rockets at speeds up to 1,500 miles an hour. Obviously one of the greatest problems confronting the engineers who designed it was that of stopping the sled.

This was solved by using a water brake system. A trough of water extends along the last 2,000 feet and as the sled hits this stretch a scoop picks up the water and ejects it forward, the action bringing the vehicle to a halt.

On the sled are tested various systems of pilot seat canopy ejection; model and full scale wings, tails and fuselages to learn aerodynamic characteristics and structural problems; ram jet power plants, and various parachute systems designed for use at transonic and supersonic speeds.

The older deceleration track is only 2,000 feet long and is used principally for research, using both human beings and dummies, into the effects of high deceleration such as might be encountered in crashes. The same type of test aid in the development of aircraft seats and safety harness to provide greater protection for pilots.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

One look at the calendar with 15 meetings for today, and you can thank your lucky stars that the roads are clearing, the tangled debris that made us look like a war-devastated area is being neatly piled or carted away, and that the hostesses are getting the extra sheets they used for storm refugees washed and put away.

There were many pleasant stories, but certainly none better than the one about the Crown Seekers class crowning their teacher of 50 years. Real crown it was, too, with real doughnuts on it, taken of the millions they've baked through the years.

And imagine missing only three Sundays in all those fifty years. Seems as if a few stars should be sprinkled in with those doughnuts in her crown.

And teeth in his mouth, that's what Gary Possinger's crowing about at 14 weeks of age, being one up on his twin brother, Barry. Their mother, Mrs. Clair Possinger, is quite amazed by the whole proceedings.

Wishing they were twins, I'm sure, were the members of the Music Study Club, torn between the Waring concert at Water Gap and their own meeting.

But looking at that calendar, I'm thinking maybe quinquagets wouldn't be too many people to be.

Mrs. Edward Smith Honored On 50th Year Of Teaching

Mrs. Edward Smith, who for fifty years has taught the Crown Seekers Class of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church with an absence of only three Sundays through all those years, was last night the guest of honor at a dinner given by the class at Biggs Restaurant.

The party also marked Mrs. Smith's birthday, and she was presented with a birthday cake, and a Bible from the class which she has served so many years. In her remarks, Mrs. Smith recalled the early days of the class, and of the members who joined as brides and are now great-grandmothers.

Mrs. Maude Stem who also has been teaching at the Sunday School during these years recalled their experiences together. Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of the church paid tribute to Mrs. Smith, and crowned her as "Doughnut Queen" in reference to the millions of doughnuts which the class has baked through the years as a means of raising money.

There were 45 members of the class present to honor Mrs. Smith.

It was announced that a meeting of the four units of the district: East Stroudsburg, Marshall's Creek, Shawnee and Del Water Gap would be held next Tuesday night at 8 at Worthington Hall, Shawnee.

Managing Editor Of Music Journal Started Her Writing Career On 'Temporary' Basis

Newspaper work was only temporary for Margaret Maxwell but the prolonged stay with the pad and pencil ultimately resulted in a position with Waring Enterprises and her location here.

Mrs. Maxwell, managing editor of the Music Journal, one of the affiliated branches of the Waring tree, made her literary debut with the Rochester, N. Y. Times-Union, and was with the Gannett empire for 10 years.

She entered the newspaper field after graduating from Eastman's School of Music in Rochester and the subsequent newspaper experience and basic education have coupled to give her an invaluable foundation for her new post.

With the Rochester paper she turned out music features and also was organist and choir director during her tenure as a newspaper woman.

Her return to Pennsylvania in August was not unusual—it merely brought her back to her native land, since her parents are residents of Irwin, near Pittsburgh.

With the Waring publication, Mrs. Maxwell writes a certain number of stories for the magazine, which has national circulation, and supervises the production.

and Phillis Keiper, student at Bethlehem Business College, spent the weekend with their family here.

Mabel Costanzo celebrated her birthday the past week.

Some parts of the community were without lights for two days due to the ice storm which tore down wires.

tion work. Much of the contributing material comes from every corner of the country where music teachers, choir directors, and professional and amateur musicians assemble to compare notes.

In addition to feature work in music with the Rochester paper Mrs. Maxwell was called upon once to write features for a freezer section in advertising promotion, and also did a turn at the American Dress Institute, working as fashion editor while the show was in New York City.

Only recently the congenial writer covered the International Music Festival in Pittsburgh, attaining fame for her version of the happenings at the conclave.

At her home, 837 Scott St., Stroudsburg, it's just Mrs. Maxwell and "Hildie," a two-year-old Dachshund who is called upon, at times, to board in sitters when her mistress is away on business trips.

And so, for a young woman whose original idea in newspaper work was to stay only a short time, Mrs. Maxwell found the "smell of the ink" inviting—and her climb has resulted in her current position—one she prizes highly for it's what she always wanted.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

East Stroudsburg High's football team, winner of eight of nine games last season, caught the eye of grid authorities at West Point, and Army's line coach, Paul Amen, was in town on Monday in an effort to woo both John "Juice" Arnst and Joe Shea to the bluffs of the Hudson. Both Shea and Arnst, tackles on the East Stroudsburg grid machine last season, are scheduled to visit West Point on Saturday, January 24. Arnst is scheduled to tour the Penn State campus this Saturday, with Shea and Dick Merring probably visiting the same school next month.

Shea, Merring and Arnst are being swamped with college attention of late, a position in which every kid in the United States would like to find himself. Dick Forster, head basketball and assistant football mentor at Eastburg High, played under Gene Ronzani, now coach of the Green Bay Packers, and Joe Zeller, now of the Chicago Bears, while attending Central High, in Newark. Dick also formerly coached with Harold Kibbott, former all-American from the University of Wisconsin.

Bob Bonser, a resident of the Saylorsburg area, has been discharged from the service. Bob made an outstanding name for himself as a pitcher in Japan, during his tour of duty as an employee of Uncle Sam. Harry Rudolph, who is heading the return of professional baseball to Wilkes-Barre, is well known in this area, having officiated basketball, football and baseball games at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College up to and including last year. Harry often worked with his son, Mendy, as a Father and Son basketball officiating team. The father of the team also often entertained fans along the sidelines during the course of a game.

Frank's Barbers are trying desperately to find a court on which to play their home Delaware Valley League basketball games — providing the cost isn't too high. If the club is unable to find a court in its home area, it will probably have to play on the Portland school hardwood, or maybe even play all its games, both home and away, on the road. The club wouldn't have a chance of making both ends meet if it is forced to take part in all of its action on foreign floors.

Bill Pennyl was missing from the East Stroudsburg lineup against Coplay last Friday, when the ice storm that swept over the area made it impossible for the youth-fueled center to make the trip from his home in Portland to East Stroudsburg in time to catch the bus to Coplay. His presence was undoubtedly missed by the Cavaliers. Al Frymeyer, who died at his home in Bethlehem on Monday, was known in this area as one of the pioneers in American Legion baseball and the game's best friend in eastern Pennsylvania.

Ray Steele bid farewell to the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College basketball team on Monday. The big center is leaving school at the end of the present semester and will report to the Ottawa club of the International League for spring training in March. Steele has signed a contract with the Philadelphia A's and if he continues his college education will be able to attend only the first semester of every school year.

The Warriors will clash with Panzer College on Wednesday, January 28, on the Normal Hill court. This contest was originally slated for last Friday, but was postponed because of the storm that hit this section of the country. However, for the second time a vacation will break up important practice sessions for the charges of Coach Chris Denis. The season was first broken up by the Christmas holidays and now the short semester vacation deprives the Warriors of several important drill sessions, especially when Denis and company will be working hard to find a replacement for Steele.

ESSTC plays host to Paterson Teachers on Saturday, January 31, which gives the Warriors two home games during the final week of this month. This should prove very popular with the students of the local institution of learning. The reason the January meeting of the Pocono Mountains Baseball League is scheduled for Tannersville Inn is the fact that Bartonville Hotel is closed. Bill and Mary Cassati, genial proprietors of Bartonville Hotel, are currently vacationing in Florida.

Minor League baseball is certainly on the way out in Pennsylvania, a state that only a couple of years ago featured teams in eight professional leagues. Next year the state may have clubs in only the Eastern League and Pony League, because there is a possibility that the class "B" Inter-State League may be unable to answer the opening bell in the spring. Dick Schaller, well known in Stroudsburg baseball circles; Bill Metzgar, former basketball star at Pocono High, and Don "Buddy" Judge, former basketball and baseball standout at Tobyhanna Township High and now a freshman at ESSTC, are among the draft contingent leaving Monroe County tomorrow.

Catasauqua Rolls Over Stroudsburg Cagers, 87-56

Wert Paces Attack For Rough Riders

Bethlehem — Catasauqua High gave one and all a good look at one of the Lehigh Valley League powers last night, when the Rough Riders rode to a smashing 87-56 victory over the Mountaineers of Stroudsburg High, here at the Moravian College field house. It was the third straight league reversal for Stroudsburg.

However, the Mountaineers gained a measure of revenge when the Stroudsburg junior varsity won the preliminary contest, 60-52, over the Caty yearlings. Dave Nevil sank a field goal in the fading seconds to tie the score at 49-49 at the end of regulation play and set the stage for a hard fought victory.

Stroudsburg was never able to match the fast break and defensive maneuvers of the strong Caty club and trailed from start to finish in the varsity battle. The Rough Riders, paced by Dave Wert, who tallied 24 points, marched off to a 22-10 advantage at the end of the first period and were out in front at the halfway mark, 43-25, after gaining a 21-15 edge during second interval of eight minutes.

Big Period
It was the same story in the third quarter, as the Rough Riders put the game on ice with a 30-10 bulge in the scoring. The host aggregation entered the final round with a 73-35 advantage.

Stroudsburg had the better of the going against the Catasauqua reserves in the final period, 21-14, but the visiting club never seriously threatened to turn the tide of battle against the strong Caty quintet.

The Mountaineers made 12 of 21 foul shots, but Caty hit the mark on 25 of 39 charity tosses, while holding a 31-22 edge in field goals. Captain Al Adelmann enjoyed his best night of the season while racking up 15 points for Stroudsburg. Bill Hickey was next in line with 12 counts.

Stroudsburg returns to its W. Main St. court on Friday, at which time Whitehall will supply the opposition.

FBI Washes Hands Of Basketball Case

Philadelphia (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday washed its hands of the Bob Schafer kidnapping case on the grounds its investigation proved no federal law was violated.

Experience
Schafer, Villanova college basketball star, told last Saturday of being kidnapped by four unknown men and taken for an hour long ride during which he was told to "be less active in the future" on the basketball court.

Davey Knocks Out Williams

Toledo, O. (AP) — Chuck Davey knocked out Johnny Williams of New York last night in a tune-up for his welterweight championship bout against "Kid" Gavilan.

The Lansing, Mich., insurance salesman felled Williams with a left to the jaw after one minute and 48 seconds of the seventh round. The bout at Toledo Arena had been scheduled to 10 rounds.

Davey, who holds a master's degree in physical education from Michigan State, led all the way — using most a strong right, mixed with jabs and hooks.

Marty Baldwin

Baldwin To Head Glen Brook Club

Marty Baldwin was reelected president of Glen Brook Country Club on Monday, at the annual meeting of the directors and members held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. The new slate of officers will serve for one year.

J. Albert Groner was elected vice president, while Cliff Heller was elected to the secretary's office. Jess Haynes was voted into the treasurer's post and Joe Wallace was named recording secretary.

The general picture for the 1953 season was carefully discussed and some of the personnel was named for the coming year.

Greenskeeper

Harold Landsdowne, well known local greenskeeper, has been employed by the Glen Brook club and will assume his duties immediately. Landsdowne has had a wealth of experience in this type of work. He is scheduled to move into the Glen Brook apartment sometime this month.

Harrington Crump, popular waiter and club house attendant, will again have charge of the men's locker room and will take over the kitchen concession for which plans will be announced at a later date.

Several candidates for the position of club golf pro were discussed and the information turned over to a committee that will interview the various candidates in the near future.

The club is searching for a successor to Mike Rubish, who served as pro at Glen Brook for the past two years.

Announcements of changes in dues and personnel will be made at a later date.

Turnesa Team Wins Tourney

Dunedin, Fla. (AP) — Joe Turnesa, one of the topnotch players of almost 30 years ago, demonstrated yesterday he is still a hot tournament player.

He paired with Bill Krafft, Fox Lake, Ill., to shoot a 32-33 — 65 and win the annual Senior-Junior Pro-Tourney in the seniors PGA Tournament Week Turnesa was the senior golfer.

Famous Family

Turnesa, who is a member of the famous golfing family, himself had a 67 on the par 72 national PGA 6,490-yard course.

The tournament pairs a senior golfer — one 50 and above — with a pro under 50. Pairs record the best score for each hole.

Stanky Issues Weight Warning

St. Louis, (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals were told yesterday by Eddie Stanky, their manager and dietician, to lay off the potatoes and gravy if they want a share of the World Series gravy.

The Redbird field leader, voted the 1952 manager of the year in the National League, told each player in notations on a form letter how much the player was expected to weigh on reporting for Spring training.

Policy Stands

Stanky's policy of fining overweight players at the rate of $2 per pound when they check in at the Spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., will remain in force.

"Now that the holidays are past and we are big and fat, we can give a little thought to our vacation," Stanky said in the letter.

Phillipsburg Dumps East Stroudsburg

Cavaliers Lose First Period Edge

Phillipsburg, N.J. — Phillipsburg High scored its second basketball victory over East Stroudsburg in as many meetings last night, as the host team raced to a 60-39 verdict over the purple and white clad Cavaliers, despite the fact that the invading contingent held a three-point advantage at the end of the first period.

The home town fans had plenty to cheer about as Phillipsburg also won the junior varsity contest between the two schools, 62-40.

East Stroudsburg jumped out to a 10-7 advantage at the end of the first eight minutes of play in the main event, but Phillipsburg ran wild in the second and third periods to build its winning margin, despite the fact that the two clubs battled on even terms in the fourth stanza.

Phillipsburg, under the guidance of Coach Fred "Benny" Leonard, moved out in front at halftime, 28-18, thanks to a 21-8 bulge in the second round.

Certain

The host aggregation made certain of victory with a 19-8 scoring spree in the third period and won by a margin of 21 points, although subs of both clubs played on an even keel in the final period.

East Stroudsburg made only 15 of 35 foul shots, while Phillipsburg came up with only 12 charity conversions in 33 attempts. The home team had a 2-1 edge in the field goal department, 24-12.

Don Herman and Captain Joe Chase paced the losing scoring attack, with 11 and eight markers respectively, while every member of the visiting squad broke into the scoring column for at least one point.

Krechel Leads Polk To Nod Over Pocono In County Loop

Kresgeville — Marty Krechel went to the head of the scoring class in the Monroe County League last night, as he paced Polk to a one-sided 84-39 decision over Pocono High, here on the winning aggregation's home court. Krechel tallied 37 points while leading the Polk attack.

Pocono won a hard fought junior varsity encounter, 32-20, over the Polk yearlings.

Good Averages

The outcome of the varsity encounter was in doubt only during the first period, during which Polk constructed a 21-17 lead. However, beginning with the second stanza Polk moved far out in front and the outcome of the game was never in doubt. The winning pupils of Coach Art Smith led 41-27 at halftime.

Both clubs had good averages from the foul line. Polk making 16 of 22 charity shots, while Pocono rang the bell on 17 of 25 attempts from the same distance.

NBA Gives Financial Aid To Olympians

Fort Wayne, Ind. (AP) — The National Basketball Association last night granted aid to the financially shaky Indianapolis Olympians and announced the present 10 team setup will continue until at least February 1.

The Indianapolis management had been reported lacking enough cash to make its next road trip, including games with Milwaukee at Sheboygan tomorrow night, with Fort Wayne at Milwaukee Friday, at Baltimore Saturday night, and with Philadelphia at Boston Sunday night.

Doubleheader

In addition to giving the Olympians funds for the trip, on which they will make no money under the league's "home team keeps all" arrangement, the NBA board of governors began arrangements for at least two doubleheaders in Indianapolis this month.

Two other teams will be sent in when Boston plays at Indianapolis January 23 and Syracuse at Indianapolis January 27.

No special arrangements were announced for Philadelphia and Milwaukee teams, also reported to be losing money.

Sox Pleased With Mound Addition

Chicago (AP) — "We have acquired the outstanding minor league picture of 1952," General Manager Frank Lane of the Chicago White Sox said yesterday in announcing the signing of Bob Keegan.

"He's the 'dark horse' entry for our pitching staff," said Lane. He's not a stranger to me, having played at Binghamton, Newark and Kansas City in the Yankee chain during years I was associated with New York. Keegan definitely figures in the White Sox pennant plans for 1953."

Purchase

The Sox bought the 31-year-old righthander from Syracuse after the 1952 season. In 1952 he pitched 27 complete games and had a 20-11 record.

Named on the International League all-star team last year, Keegan is a former Bucknell University graduate.

Senior League Action

Two games are scheduled for the Senior YMCA League today. The Pocono Jets face Biggs' Restaurant at 7:15 p. m., while Auer's Paint Store meets MIU at 8:30 p. m.

World's newest V8

with a million miles behind it

Television treat—
the BUICK CIRCUS HOUR
—every fourth Tuesday.

THE GREATEST
BUICK
IN 50 GREAT YEARS

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT
BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

HERE, in literal fact, is the most advanced V8 engine ever placed in a standard-production American automobile.

It is the first such V8 to reach an 8.5 to 1 compression ratio, and the first with a dynamic flow muffler that cuts power loss to zero.

It is the first V8 to utilize vertical valves together with a 12-volt electrical system instead of the usual 6. It is also the first designed with new "T" type intake manifold to replace the "Y" type conventionally used in V8s.

It is, quite simply, the first V8 Fireball Engine—the engine that brings electrifying performance to the greatest Buicks in fifty great years—the engine that powers the 1953 Buick ROADMASTER with 188 hp., and the 1953 Buick SUPER with up to 170.

Naturally, this spectacular new V8 has been proved—by eight years of developing, testing, improving, perfecting—and by more than a million miles of driving through desert, mountains, cities and plains. Only then did Buick engineers mark it: Released for Production.

But these hard-to-please engineers gave these Golden Anniversary Buicks far more than new power.

They gave them, too, a still finer ride, more superb comfort, new braking power and handling ease—and a sensational new Twin-Turbine Dynaflo Drive* that adds new quiet and whip-fast getaway to absolute smoothness.

Nothing, we believe, will do more justice to your automobile dollars—or to your love of magnificent motoring—than a visit to us right now.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.
